

Patient and Public Involvement in Research

Are you a researcher?

- Would your research benefit from involving members of the public?
- Do you need support to make it happen?

Are you a member of the public?

- Are you interested in advising research teams - bringing the patient/public view to health research?

We offer advice, support and training in all aspects of patient and public involvement in research.

Want to know more?

Contact Allison Worth, the Patient and Public Involvement Advisor

Email: Allison.Worth@ed.ac.uk Phone: 0131 537 3348

Website: <https://www.crts.org.uk>

Our Patient and Public Involvement group:

- advises researchers on their studies
- reviews grant applications from the public point of view
- contributes to training events
- helps to write information about research findings for a public audience.

We welcome new members at any time.

You can find practical guides to Patient and Public Involvement on our website:

- Getting involved: a guide for the public
- Involving people: guide for researchers

For the latest news, upcoming training events and access to helpful resources, see <https://www.crts.org.uk>